the world is not as mobile or as interconnected as we like to think as harm de blij argues in the power of place in crucial ways from the uneven distribution of natural resources to the unequal availability of opportunity geography continues to hold billions of people in its grip we are all born into natural and cultural environments that shape what we become individually and collectively from our mother tongue to our father's faith from medical risks to natural hazards where we start our journey has much to do with our destiny hundreds of millions of farmers in the river basins of Asia and Africa and tens of millions of shepherds in isolated mountain valleys from the Andes to Kashmir all live their lives much as their distant ancestors did remote from the forces of globalization incorporating a series of persuasive maps De Blij describes the tremendously varied environments across the planet and shows how migrations between them are comparatively rare De Blij also looks at the ways we are redefining place so as to make its power even more potent than it has been with troubling implications

This collection of papers is the fourth in a series of volumes on the work of the Comparative Austronesian Project. Each paper describes a specific Austronesian locality and offers an ethnographic account of the way in which social knowledge is vested, maintained and transformed in a particular landscape. The intention of the volume is to consider common patterns in the representation of place among Austronesian speaking populations.

Reflecting the revival of interest in a social theory that takes place and space seriously this book focuses on geographical place in the practice of social science and history. There is significant interest among scholars from a range of disciplines in bringing together the geographical and sociological imaginations. The geographical imagination is a concrete and descriptive one concerned with determining the nature of places and classifying them and the links between them. The sociological imagination aspires to explanation of human activities in terms of abstract social processes. The chapters in this book focus on both the intellectual histories of the concept of place and on its empirical uses. They show that place is as important for understanding contemporary America as it is for 18th century Sri Lanka. They also show how the concept can provide insight into old problems such as the nature of social life in Renaissance Florence and Venice. The editors are leading exponents of the view of place as a concept that can mediate the geographical and sociological imaginations.

The indigenous communities of the Lower Fraser River, British Columbia, a group commonly called the Stó:lō have historical memories and senses of identity deriving from events, cultural practices and kinship bonds that had been continuously adapting long before a non-native visited the area directly. In the power of place the problem of time Keith Thor Carlson re-thinks the history of native newcomer relations from the unique perspective of a classically trained historian who has spent nearly two decades living working and talking with the stó:lō peoples stó:lō actions and reactions during colonialism were rooted in their pre colonial experiences and customs which coloured their responses to events such as smallpox outbreaks or the gold rush profiling tensions of gender and class within the community carlson emphasizes the elasticity of collective identity a rich and complex history the power of place the problem of time looks to both the internal and the external factors which shaped a society during a time of great change and its implications extend far beyond the study region place it's where we're from it's where we're going it asks for our attention and care if we pay attention place has much to teach us with this belief as a foundation the power of place offers a comprehensive and compelling case for making communities the locus of learning for students of all ages and backgrounds dispelling the notion that place based education is an approach limited to those who can afford it the authors describe how schools in diverse contexts urban and rural public and private have adopted place based programs as a way to better engage students and attain three important goals of education student agency equity and community this book identifies six defining principles of place based education namely it 1 embeds learning everywhere and views the community as a classroom 2 is centered on individual learners 3 is inquiry based to help students develop an understanding of their place in the world 4 incorporates local and global thinking and investigations 5 requires design thinking to find solutions to authentic problems 6 is interdisciplinary for each principle the authors share stories of students whose lives were transformed by their experiences in place based programs elaborate on what the principle means demonstrate what it looks like in practice by presenting case studies from schools throughout the united states and offer action steps for implementation aimed at educators from prek through high school the power of place is a definitive guide to developing programs that will lead to successful outcomes for students more fulfilling careers for teachers and lasting benefits for communities from a review in the australian law journal this book is a delightful surprise for within its bare title the authors have covered the law concerning powers of attorney on both sides of the tasman the text is written in a clear and lucid fashion it is well laid out and provides in convenient form the texts of the relevant legislation applying throughout australia and in new zealand it provides an accurate summary of the law as applying at the end of 1992 the index is unusually comprehensive and the coverage of this area of law is thoroughly professional it should prove to be a most useful text for practitioners in areas of company law probate and family law who will appreciate the specimen forms and clauses offered it is so wide in its potential utility that given its sensible price it should be on every solicitor s bookshelf
